

World Academy's Paradigm (R)Evolution

By Kathy Sevigny

Now, more than ever, it's crucial to consider your child's education not only through the eyes of a parent, but also from the child's perspective. Kathy Nelson, Founder and Head of School at World Academy in Nashua believes that a child's educational journey, from cradle to careers, must be personalized to meet the needs of each individual student.

"As brain studies on children's development indicate, it's increasingly apparent that traditional models of education just aren't engaging children in the ways that best suit them", says Nelson. With 35 years in private education, she's found that too many school educational paradigms fit children into molds without accounting for each's unique talents; capabilities; or emotional, developmental and cognitive needs.

World Academy's roadmap for student success, 'Cradle to Careers,' is an educational journey moving the child seamlessly from infancy through middle school graduation. This unique approach encourages much collaboration between students, parents and teachers and requires higher level integrative thinking. Teams of teachers craft Individual Learning Plans based on detailed analytics of each student's educational needs. As students advance in their knowledge foundation, they are encouraged to take charge of their own educational direction and pursue areas that interest them.

"Birth is the beginning of a journey that needs to be intentionally nurtured", explains Nelson. "We provide the foundation, resources and experiences to support growth and success at each level, without gaps, to maximize on every child's opportunity to achieve well-rounded personhood."

For over 35 years, World Academy has successfully educated and nurtured over 15,000 students while deepening their passions for learning. Clearly, authentic twenty-first century learning experiences flourish widely at World Academy!
